Stanford Journal:—Our good friend, Prof. M. D. Hughes, of Lancaster, came to see us yesterday and brought along a new subscriber. Mesdames Joseph Burnside and C. S. Ballou, of Garrard, spent yesterday with Mrs. G. A. McRoberts.

Dr. J. L. McKee was taken suddenly ill after arriving here last Saturday, and his physicians advised that he return home, which he did Monday. The many friends of Dr. McKee trust that his illness is only temporary and that he will soon be entirely recovered to health and strength.

Mr. Millard F. West has resigned as deputy collector in this district, and will go to Washington to take a more lucrative position under Commissioner Yerkes. The new place pays $1,000, and the duties are not so great. He will leave for Washington in a few days. Mr. West is a deserving young man, and THE RECORD congratulates him upon the promotion.

In the February number of the Delineator a very careful and fully illustrated description of midwinter dress materials is given. This is in addition to the usual number of fashions shown for women, girls and little folks. Special attention is also given to confirmation wear, and in the dressmaking article, to the matter of fitting in sleeves. The Delineator is a thoroughly practical all round magazine for women, and has reached a circulation of over half a million a month.

Mr. Alex McKee Kinnaird and Miss Emma White were married at the home of the bride, in Cumberland Gap, Wednesday, of last week. The bride, who is quite a society belle of this city, is said to be a young lady of beauty and many accomplishments. Mr. Kinnaird is a Lancaster boy who located in Middlesboro some years since, and is one of the Magic City's most prominent and prosperous business men. He has many warm friends here who extend congratulations. The newly married pair will be at home in Middlesboro after Feb. 1st.

Friends in this, his old home, are delighted to learn that Mr. Sam B. Harris was given a handsome promotion by his employers, Bonnie Bros. of Louisville, the first of the year. Sam is a deserving young fellow. Mr. Burt A. Spencer, formerly with Charles B. Smith & Co., has also accepted a lucrative position with this firm. Mr. O. Hunter Irvine, who has been connected with Bonnie Bros., has purchased an interest in the Kentucky Distilling Co. Lancaster boys always come to the front, and THE RECORD sends congratulations to these.

In the write-up of the hop given in Lancaster last week, we wrote in one place "pink flowers" in as plain English as its possible to write words. The compositor, however, whose head is filled with cigarette smoke, girls and shows, thought it ought to be different, and set it pink "mask." How so foolish and inexcusable error could be made is incomprehensible. Its fortunate for us that the young lady whose costume we attempted to give is a near relative of ours, or this page would now be taken up by our obituary instead of this explanation. Its pretty hard to have to "go over" everything in your office to see that its done right, especially when you pay hard cash to have it done correctly, but unless this is done, errors of the most inexcusable kind will creep in.

Reconsidered.

A Topeka man lost a small opal set out of his ring and went to the jeweler to have it replaced. Returning home he found the lost set, and putting it in his mouth for safe keeping, hurried back to the jeweler's to have that set used instead of the new opal. Rushing into the store he said: "Say, I've found the old set, so don't use that new one." He attempted to remove the stone from his mouth, gave a gulp looked sheepish, and said: "I guess you'll have to use the new stone."

That man needed a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Sold by R. E. McRoberts. 1m

The things that go without saying must have escaped feminine attention.

The Mothers Favorite

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is the mother's favorite. It is pleasant and safe for children to take and always cures. It is intended especially for coughs, colds, croup and whooping cough, and is the best medicine made for these diseases. There is not the least danger in giving it to children for it contains no opium or other injurious drug and may be given as confidently to a babe as to an adult. For sale by R. E. McRoberts druggist.

Man's inhumanity to man is only exceeded by woman's inhumanity to woman.

A Prominent Chicago Woman Speaks

Prof. Roxa Tyler, of Chicago, Vice-President Illinois Woman's Alliance, in speaking of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, says: "I suffered with a severe cold this winter which threatened to run into pneumonia. I tried different remedies but I seemed to grow worse and the medicine upset my stomach. A friend advised me to try Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and I found it was pleasant to take and it relieved me at once. I am now entirely recovered, saved a doctor's bill, time and suffering, and I will never be without this splendid medicine again." For sale by R. E. McRoberts, druggist.

Art Needlework.

For those who love odd things in Needlework designs, Moldavian Embroidery, especially for the first time in the February Delineator, will prove of interest. Moldavian Embroidery is very simple in its character. It depends for its full beauty upon the stitches being of exact length. The designs are few and limited by Grecian tendencies. The Delineator shows this embroidery in colors. It is worthy of study by those of our readers who are skillful with the needle.

Death of John Walker.

After a lingering illness, John Walker died at the residence of his father, Mr. Arch K. Walker, near Old Paint Lick Sunday night. Mr. Walker entered the volunteer army at the breaking out of the Spanish war, and served in Capt. W. B. Penny's company, which was made up at Stanford. He went with his regiment to Porto Rico, and it was while in the service there that he contracted Diabetes. When he came home, he gradually grew worse. Funeral services were held Tuesday morning and the remains interred in the cemetery at Paint Lick church. Mr. Walker was about twenty-four years of age. He was an exceedingly popular young man, and numbered his friends by the score. There was never a more wholesome, big-hearted boy than John Walker, and his death is deeply deplored by all who knew him.

A Petition.

We, the teachers of Garrard county, do hereby heartily endorse the able and efficient manner in which Miss Eliza J. Lusk has discharged her duties as School Superintendent, and we earnestly recommend her re-nomination and election to the same office. Believing that the office should be non-political, we petition the republican party to leave the office on their ticket vacant, thereby giving Miss Lusk no opposition. (Signed.) Amanda Anderson, Mary King, Edna Scott, Eliza Smith, Mary E. Tomlinson, Minnie Johnson, Katie West, Elizabeth Tomlinson, Mrs. Floyd Curtis, Effie King, Mittie Dunn, Miss Jennie Snodgrass, Margaret Murphy, Claudie Arnold, J. B. Hutchings, Lucille Marsee, Alice Henderson, Mrs. Mary Swope, Annie B. Royston, Mary B. West, Claude I. Peters, John Floyd, Mattie Bell Fry.

These are the names to whom the petition was presented. Lack of time prevented seeing all the teachers, but it is quite certain all would have cheerfully signed, had they been given the opportunity.

State Organizer Coming.

Rev. W. M. Liggins, State organizer for Prohibition work, and Prof. Karl Taylor, a noted vocalist will give free entertainments in Lancaster on the evenings of January 24th and 25th, at the court house. These are consecrated men, battling against the greatest foe of God and man, now entrenched behind the legislative bulwarks of our government, both Federal and State, as no other evil has ever been in our history. However much men may differ as to the methods of dealing with this evil, these men will make anti-saloon sentiment wherever they are heard by the people. No unkind criticisms or personalities will be indulged in. Their work is educational and preparatory and is in accord with the frequently repeated resolutions of most of our church bodies. It is hoped that every friend of law and good order, temperance and righteousness will come out to hear these men.

Dr. J. D. Smith, State Ch'm.

A Hemp Corner.

A press dispatch from Frankfort says: "It is believed here that a corner of the Kentucky hemp crop of next year is being engineered by a big Boston firm that uses more hemp for manufacturing purposes than any other two firms in this country. The Ludlow Company, the supposed corner, has already bought the unsown crops of the coming year of about three-fourths of the Kentucky hemp growers. There is but little hemp grown in the United States outside of Kentucky, and only about 10,000 acres is raised in Kentucky usually averaging 800 to 1,000 pounds per acre. Hemp is now quoted at 5¢ per pound. The past year's crop was short, hence the slight increase in price, which has been ranging from 4¢ to 4¢ cents per pound. One Kentucky firm that usually buys from 700 to 1,000 acres of hemp annually, has only been able to secure 300 acres so far, and has been compelled to purchase Italian hemp which is higher priced and not as good as Kentucky hemp."

Splendid Book.

The ladies of Garrard county are informed that McCall's Magazine is the handsomest home and fashion magazine in existence. This celebrated magazine offers beautiful premiums to all who raise clubs, and illustrates the famous McCall Bazar Patterns. The premiums offered are the handsomest in the world. It contains stories, literary articles and handsome colored fashion plates. The publishers wish one representative in every locality, and will send instructions and free prize offers to any lady who will mention the paper and send her name and address to The McCall Company, 144 West 14th Street, New York City.

In 1893 California shipped to England 95,817 cases of canned fruit. In 1899 the number of cases was 659,303—an increase of over 600 per cent in seven years.

After milk has been extracted from the cow it should be placed in the coldest place to be found, as this is necessary to bring all the cream to the top. It takes cold-air applications steadily to bring out the cream.

The Statistician of the Department of Agriculture estimates the United States wheat crop of 1900 at 522,229,505 bushels, the area actually harvested being 42,495,385 acres, and the average yield per acre 12.29 bushels. The production of winter wheat is estimated at 350,025,409 bushels and that of spring wheat is estimated at 172,204,066 bushels, the area actually harvested being 26,236,897 acres in the former case and 16,259,488 acres in the latter.

Recent sales of blooded cattle in Texas show that the demand of high-class cattle in that State never was better. The average price of 141 head of registered Herefords sold at Fort Worth in December was $206.77. This is a pretty good average for any dispersion sale, and a strong indication that Texas stockmen are after the best they can get. Young cattle are greatly preferred, and there are not enough of the pure-bred kind in Texas to supply 75 per cent. of the demand.—Chicago Drivers' Journal.

Several of our exchanges note loss of horses in a manner similar to what several have been lost here. The animal becomes blind, and in a few hours is dead. A gentleman who has given the matter study, says that while the corn is growing, a worm eats the young grains leading behind in his track a lot of poisonous dust. This, when dry, is inhaled by the horse. It inflames the tear ducts leading from the eyes to the nose, causing blindness; the inflammation soon extends to the brain and death ensues.—Clark county Democrat.

Marion county certainly contributes her share of mules to the Southern market, says the Lebanon (Ky.) Falcon, Jan. 3rd, as thirteen carloads of the long-eared hybrids have been shipped from Lebanon within a week's time. On Monday of last week four cars were sent out; on Saturday six, and Monday last saw three more carloads depart. All of these mules were of a fine grade and were shipped by Marion county stock traders. Louisiana was the objective point where the mules will be used on the sugar plantations. The mule trade in the South is said to be brisk now, and our buyers will no doubt realize a right nice sum from their deal.

SHEEP TREMS—Winter feeding and marketing of lambs is growing both more popular and profitable....Lambs fed to gain half pound to a pound per day are said to be most esteemed by the lovers of lamb chops, as the meat is sweeter and most palatable....Rape is most highly esteemed in the early feeding of lambs when fattening for market, and for a finish this is followed with corn, peas and other nitrogenous foods....There are some writers who still harp away on the control of the sex of lambs, but the test of every theory yet advanced has been exploded, on the principle that the proof of the pudding is in the eating....Referring to the origin of the sheep, a writer ventures to say that the first sheep was black. Perhaps it is still said there is "always one black sheep in the flock," and maybe here is the origin of that idea....

In an article on the hemp industry in the Lexington Herald, W. J. Loughridge says: The 1896 crop was about the poorest of any crop Kentucky ever grew, and this, together with the general condition of the whole country, which was the worst, the price declined until the best hemp was only bringing $3 and a great deal sold as low as $2.50 per hundred. The 1897 crop was a very superior one, and sold from $4 to $4.50. Since then hemp growers have shared in the general prosperity of the country, the 1898 crop being marketed from $4.50 to $5. The 1899 crop was an average one in acreage, but the season was such that the yield was probably not over half a normal yield. This made a short crop and it has all been marketed. The market opened early in the spring of 1900 at $4.50 and advanced rapidly until in May and June the price had reached $6. This price induced the farmers to sell, and today there is not in Kentucky a single crop of old hemp which is a condition that has not existed in Kentucky for twenty-five or thirty years. The 1899 crop comes on an absolutely bare market. Hemp breaking is just now beginning and the hemp that has been delivered is of most excellent quality, and promises to be one of the best crops Kentucky has produced in years. The market has opened firm at $5 to $5.10 per hundred.

WALKS TO ESCAPE HIS WIFE.

By Keeping on the Move for Twenty-Five Years a Wanderer Has Dodged a Scolding.

Newspapers in St. Petersburg, Russia, contain accounts of the strange wandering of Theodore Miranoff, a peasant of Tambov. For 25 years Miranoff has been a wanderer on the face of the earth. In that time he has walked enough to carry him around the earth at the equator. He has done little all those 25 years but walk, walk, walk. He has walked across Russia, he has walked through the snows of Siberia, he has walked up the Tamar highlands in central Asia, and tramped along the banks of the Amur river to its source. He has gone shuffling across China, and his weary feet have stirred the dust in every road in Japan from Nagasaki to Mount Moroshi. He has invaded the United States and walked along the west coast and over the Rocky mountains, and across the country to the Atlantic seaboard. Then back again to Russia, and the last heard of him he was wearily walking up the left bank of the Volga river, in Russia, determined to follow it for all its winding 1,500 miles to its source.

And when Theodore Miranoff had walked up along the left bank of the Volga from the Caspian sea to its source, what did he propose to do then? Why, then, he was going to step across to the other bank of the Volga and walk from its source down to the Caspian sea.

Thus for 25 years has Theodore Miranoff been walking. And all to escape the tongue lashing of his shrewish wife. Like poor Rip Van Winkle, who fled to the mountains and went to sleep for 20 years, Theodore Miranoff has fled to the trackless desert and the fields of ice and snow in the effort to walk away from the terrible tongue of his wife. But, unlike Rip Van Winkle, who went back after 20 years, and found peace, poor Theodore Miranoff even after 25 years was met by his wife, still much alive, and who unbraided him in more burning words than ever and chased him with a broom to the outer circle of Tambov.

Then it was Theodore Miranoff made the remark, which, if translated literally from Russian to English, would be: "It's me to the Volga," for off he put for the banks of the Volga with no other intention than that of walking up one side of that great stream, dipping his feet in the source of the river, and then walking down the other side. It was anything but get away from his wife, and so as long as she lives Theodore Miranoff will keep walking. It's a question of endurance between his sturdy legs and Mrs. Miranoff's sturdier tongue, with the odds all in favor of the tongue lasting the longest.

Miranoff, when a young man, went with his family to Vladivostok, on the eastern coast of Siberia. There it was, apparently, that the continual tongue lashings of his wife became so violent that Miranoff decided to leave his happy home. He started out on his wanderings.

Finally he reached St. Petersburg after walking over 6,000 miles. But he was not happy there. He decided to keep on walking. He marched away across Russia, tramping from town to town until finally he had reached the Ural mountains. He crossed these in winter, and descending into Siberia again, walked southeast and climbed slowly up the highlands to Tamar, the roof of the world. He found his way, sometimes traveling with caravans, but often alone, until he reached the Western Kingman mountains, where he hunted for the source of the Amur river. He slowly followed the river in its course to the sea, and in time found himself at Kharbavoka, in Siberia, only 400 miles from his home. So he returned to Vladivostok.

He determined to stay at home in spite of all. But one day, after an unusually furious outburst on the part of his wife, Theodore silently vanished again. This time he walked through China down to Port Arthur and New-Chwang.

The last seen of him he was at Novgorod, on the Volga, walking, walking, walking.

The last heard of Mrs. Miranoff she was still at Vladivostok. And she was talking, talking, talking.
